EDITORIAL.

We are using today, excerpts of an article which we consider of some interest to our readers, taken from a publication of the "Awake" magazine. "WHEN PEOPLE DEFY THE LAW". "In most parts of the world, respect for law and order has swiftly eroded in recent years. This lawless drift was well described by H.R. McKinnon, prominent lawyer & member of the police commission of San Francisco, who said: "It requires no great effort to establish that disrespect for law is widespread, is alarming, and is steadily growing worse". Swelling this defiance of the law, sharp increases have occurred in lawless acts such as rioting, racial conflicts, revolutions and civil disobedience, where people take the law into their own hands, often resorting to acts of violence to gain what they desire. Frequently crowds at sporting events disagree with decisions of officials and hurl missiles at them or even assault them with fists and other weapons. Also, young students all too often show disrespect for authority by irresponsible acts, some even assaulting the very teachers trying to instruct them to respect the law!"

Law and Order should be respected and offenders should be severely punished.

JAMAICA'S BUSINESSMEN BACK BUSTAMANTE.

Kingston, Jamaica: The Jamaica Manufacturer's Association recently endorsed Prime Minister Sir Alexander Bustamante's stand against mechanisation in the sugar industry. PROBE FOR ARMY SHOOTING IN B. G.

Georgetown: The British Guiana Government is to appoint a commission to probe the shooting of two Indian farmers by a British Soldier, acting Premier Hon. Brindley Benn announced here recently. Army headquarters said that after the incidents during a house-to-house police search, the patrol had fired at the man who was shot and killed when he approached in an "aggressive manner" after being told four times to halt. Mr. Benn said that a strong protest had been sent to the Governor, Sir Richard Luyt, about "assaults and acts of brutality meted out by troops". In an official statement from the Prime Minister's Office, Mr. Benn said: "It is quite clear even on the statement issued by the military authorities that there was absolutely no justification for the shooting of these unarmed and innocent persons with machine guns. Mr. Benn also charged that policemen stood by without taking action when two Ministers of the ruling People's Progressive Party Government were stoned during an election campaign public meeting at Suburban Kitty's Market Square. He alleged pelting by "an organised gang" in which Education and Social Development Minister Cedric Nunes was wounded on the head and taken to hospital and Finance Minister Charles Ramkisson Jacob hit on the chest. Place of the meeting was in the hometown of the opposition People's National Congress leader, Mr. Forbes Burnham. Reports said that Mr. Nunes unleashed an extended verbal onslaught against Mr. Burnham.

A CREOLE PROVERB.

"Don't wait until the horse gets away to lock the stable!"

LETS REMOVE THESE EYESORES.

Several persons have called to my attention the deplorable state of some buildings in our Community especially within the San Nicholas area. Buildings which are unoccupied and uncared for which become targets to people, who, just to add more to the deplorable state of these buildings, keep stoning and wrecking them. The deplorable state of these buildings is surely eyesores to many people. What impression will the tourists have if these eyesores remain and get on the increase? What would the tourists think of our Community? If the owners of these places cannot repair them and fix them so they can be occupied, then something should be done about either fixing them or scrapping them! An appeal is therefore being made to the Competent Authorities to have something done about these eyesores before they continue to encourage vandalism and hooliganism, and distasteful sights to people.

THINGS TO KNOW.

This Council was never very popular with the electorate who felt themselves to be too far removed from their representatives. The people were disgruntled with the entire political set-up for in 1903, only 57 voters participated in the election for counselors. In 1905, 70 people went to the polls, an all time high. A year later, one man carried the entire election when he obtained 43 votes cast. Political Developments Of The 20th. Century to World War 2. When Queen Wilhelmina ascended the Dutch Throne in 1898, a new political era began for the Overseas Colonies. New thinking on the part of the Colonial people as well as a changing viewpoint with respect to outdated Colonial Rule festered the concept of a Union of the entire Dutch Kingdom. The idea was first expressed in the amended constitution of 1922 as a political formula. This Constitution no longer recognized any Colonies or Possessions; only Overseas Territories. The representative bodies of Indonesia, Surinam and Curacao were given Constitutional Status and their functions and authority with respect to internal affairs were defined. Although only general guides were posted and so many exceptions were incorporated into the Constitution that Self-Rule was most limited, nevertheless, the foundation was laid for the possibility of one Kingdom of four Territories sharing equal rights. The Constitution of 1922 made no provisions for the future addition of other Territories to the Kingdom; This meant that Holland no longer desired to expand Her Overseas Possessions. (To be continued next week).

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR:

San Nicholas,
October 30th.

Dear Sir: I was influenced by "friends" and prejudiced against The Universal. However, other friends who read your paper, insisted that I buy a copy. I bought one, and I am convinced that The Universal is deserving of support. It has most news and articles which we do not see in any other Antillean paper. I would be looking forward for your issues weekly. Wishing you all the best. A New Universal Reader.

Ed. Note: Thank you. You have shown your intelligence by defying the ignorant elements.

San Nicholas.
October 31st.

Dear Sir: There is a man who goes around telling people he is the best English announcer on the Island. When he gets before a microphone he makes me laugh and gets me vexed at the same time. I know if you are speaking English, I do not mean patois (patwa) English, that B A R A C U D A is Baracuda and not Baracoota, and Oranjestad, is not Oranjestat. What do you think?
Ed. Note: We go along with you on your constructive criticism. Its the old saying "the man who thinks that he knows all, knows nothing at all!" There are idiots everywhere and some become more and more ridiculous.

IT IS DANGEROUS. WATCH OUT! PREVENTION IS BETTER THAN CURE.

When it began to rain one evening recently during a backyard barbecue in a Chicago suburb, the hostess was undaunted. She moved two braziers (metal containers to hold burning coals or charcoals) and the guests in the garage to continue the party. Within half an hour, a number of persons became ill. One woman fell unconscious and could not be immediately revived.

Fifteen of the party-goers were rushed to the hospital, where they all recovered, although five remained overnight. Not a single one of the victims suspected that the cause of their mysterious illness was carbon monoxide poisoning until doctors mentioned it. In California last year a 13 year old boy on a camping trip, with his family, slept in a station wagon one night. Since it was cool, a hibachi (believed to be a container to hold briks made of compressed coal dust), with burning briquets, which had been used to cook supper, was placed in the vehicle to keep him warm. All the windows were closed except one side ventilator that was an open crack. In the morning the boy could not be awakened. An autopsy showed that his blood was saturated with 52% carbon monoxide, which had been given off by the smoldering charcoal. (To be continued next week).

THINGS TO KNOW.

By: M. D.

ACACIA.

Acacia is a gum obtained from the acacia tree; it is much used in medicine as an emulsifier for various mixtures. In cases of shock, acacia in a saline solution can be used, instead of a blood transfusion, immediately, without the delay of blood typing.

ACAPNIA.

Acapnia is a deficiency of carbon dioxide (CO2) in the blood, which occurs after strenuous exercise or after excessive deep breathing, as advised by faddists. This lowering of the carbon dioxide content of the blood causes very shallow respiration, dizziness and muscle cramps and may even produce convulsions. Taking a few deep breaths when out in the fresh air will do no harm, but don't follow the cultists' advice of excessive deep breathing exercises as a cure for all ills. Excessive deep breathing causes overventilation (hyperventilation) and a disappearance of the normal amount of carbon dioxide (about 5%) from the blood. This amount of carbon dioxide is absolutely necessary for the stimulation of the breathing center in the brain, which is indispensable to keep up the breath of life. Once this stimulant to the breathing center is greatly reduced, respiration becomes slow and shallow and is followed by the other symptoms mentioned above.

CAR STRUCK DOWN BOY IN SAN NICHOLAS.

About 10. 05 on Friday morning last, a boy aged 9, Leung Wing Hong, son of Mrs. Leung, proprietress of Hop Long Laundry San Nicholas, was struck down by car # 3315, driven by Mr. Charles E. Morales, Insurance agent of Aruba. It is understood that the incident occurred when the boy attempted to cross the road in front of the approaching car. Our reporter said that First Aid was rendered the boy, who was lying on the pavement for sometime by Dr. G. Waleg M.D. of Dr. A.F. Deussenbroek's Clinic. A policeman who was driving D 431, was in the vicinity at the same time, and the Ambulance was immediately summoned. The Ambulance arrived about 25 minutes after, and took the boy to the San Pedro hospital, Oranjestad, where he is a patient. We understand that among the injuries which he received was a broken leg. It surely took some time for the Ambulance in San Nicholas to reach the place of the accident. Several persons have asked us what could happen in a serious case of Life or Death with such Ambulance delay?
